Colour me in

The Taj Mahal is located in Agra, on the right bank of the Yamuna River. The chief architect was Ustad Ahmed Lahauri from Persia. The construction started in 1653 and was completed in 1648. Taj Mahal is often mentioned as the jewel of Muslim art in India.

One of the Taj Mahal's most recognizable features is the large onion dome. It has a height of around 35 metres (115 feet) and is surrounded by 4 smaller domes.

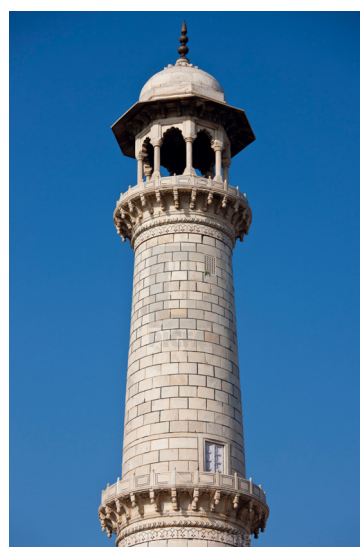

The dome is in WHITE marble and it creates different shades and colours due to the reflection of the Sun. It can also be seen in all its glory in natural night without any artificial lighting.

Minaret

In Islamic architecture, minaret served as a reminder to pray and also helped to distinguish mosques from the surrounding architecture.

A fun fact about the four minarets surrounding the Taj Mahal is that they were built tilted away from the dome. This is to protect the dome in case they collapse for any reason, such as in an earthquake. These minarets would fall away from the tomb and not onto the Dome.
